SIR E. GREY ON EGYPT.

Sir E. Grey's references to Egypt in his speech on the Foreign Office vote, as summarised by the telegrams which we have published, will be accepted by all, save by the small ultra-nationalist party, as still one more indication of our desire to direct the Government of the country in the interests of the people and to meet as far as possible their wishes. Regarding the question of revising the sentences inflicted upon those found guilty of active participation in the Denishwai outrage, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs referred to the necessity of making a very severe example of the convicted, and pointed out the danger of an act of clemency being miscon-strued into one of weakness. He gave every hope, however, that there would be a revision of sentences "when the state of feeling neccesi tating a severe example had passed." But, unfortunately for all, there exists in Egypt a psuedo-nationalist press, which immoderately denounces England's every action regarding this country, which refuses to believe that an English official can act for the good of the country or administrate with wisdom, which loudly decries our every effort on behalf of the people, and which-in fine-gives the impres sion that a fanatical and hysterical spirit is existent. The cry of this press is "give us self-government," but they refuse to recognise that by their irrationality they harm the very cause for which they so vociferously shout. We trust the day will come when an act of clemency, such as the revision of the sentences on the Denishwai prisoners, will not be accepted as an act of weakness, when the supporters of Mustapha Kamel and his colleagues will plead their cause in such a spirit as to show us that it is possible of favourable consideration, and persuade us that they are genuine and disinterested wellwishers of their country, capable of reasonable action. As Sir E. Grey remarked, the withdrawal of British influence would re-open the door to corruption, oppression, and injustice. The Egypt of to-day has sprung into existence in an unparalleled short space of time, and the education of the people is by no means completed. The necessity for a guiding and protecting hand is acknowledged by all whose opinion is of weight, and we are glad to reognise that our policy receives support from the highest quarters and all advanced Egyp tians, while the poorer classes are quietly appreciative of the benefits we have conferred upon them. The only possible fruit of the iolent policy pursued by certain of our confrères is distrust, for such agitation only strengthens the conviction that a quarter of s ury s s rule under the immediate influence of the highest western civilisation has been insufficient to import to the nation

JAPAN'S EGYPT.

the wisdom and moderation necessary for self-government.

On the situation in Korea the "Nation" remarks:—"Japan has brought about the ab-dication of the Emperor as England and France brought about the fall of the Khedive Ismail, and Korean independence enters upon a new phase. It is possible to exaggerate the importance of the event. Even to the Emperor the difference between reigning and abdicating must be little more than verbal. The only function of an independent sovereign which had remained to him since the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war was the right of signing under protest He has exercised it to the last . . . Were Korea a Japanese province the prosperity of the whole population would be a national interest, while the natives would be Japanese subjects, who would enjoy civil, and night ultimately aspire to political equality with the conquerors. As a mere sphere of influence it is simply a field to be developed by Japanese syndicates and colonised by Japanese veterans. One hears already of the wholesale expropriation of land and the imposition of the corvee. It is this material exploitation rather than the outrage of Korean nationality which is the really sinister aspect of this indirect conquest."

Cairo Cang of Burgiars.

cairo cang of Burgiara.

The Cairo City police are apparently very much occupied with an expert band of burgiars who are working the capital in a very systematic manner. Their organisation seems to be excellent and their operations have been attended with considerable success, though much difficulty has been encountered in tracing their wherabouts. The last exploit of these gentry was at Margouche, practically a quarrymen's village, in the house of a grocer named Mohamed el Guindi, where the malefactors succeeded in penetrating three walls and blowing open a safe from which they extracted a sum of £90. Happily a further sum of some two thousand pounds, the property of Mohamed Guindi's partner, had been removed previously so that the haul was much below the anticipations of the enterprising visitors.

THE NILE FLOOD.

THE ADVISER'S NOTE.

DEFICIENCY OF RAIN.

DEFICIENCY OF RAIN.

The following preliminary note on the Nile Flood of 1907 has been issued by Mr. W. R. Williams, acting Adviser to the Ministry of Public Works:

In, the early summer the levels, while better than those of 1905, were appreciably lower than those of the last year. An improvement took place towards the end of April, and though it only lasted for three or four weeks, it sustained the levels northwards for some time and admitted of comparatively easy rotations. About the middle of May, however, the levels up country dropped considerably and at Rosseires actually tonched those of 1905, and though the flood began to rise within the usual time, it was weak from the commencement and has since been interrupted by intervals during which the rive level has varied but slightly. Although the Atbara showed a marked rise recently at Khashm el Girba and there were fair rains in the Northern Sudan which were beneficial locally, they were not widespread and had practically no effect on the Nile itself.

Owing to the weak approach of the flood, considerable care has had to be exercised in the regulation at the Assouan dam so as to provide an ample supply for the irrigation of cotton and summer crops and Sharaki sowings, and at the same time to keep sufficient reserve in the reservoir to avoid its being emptied too soon. This has been very effectively carried out and the dam has again proved of invaluable assistance, and, in spite of the weak beginning of the flood, it has enabled the removal of the Sharaki decree prohibition from the 21st. July in the Northern Provinces of the Delta and from the whole of Upper and the remainder of Lower Egypt between the 25th and the end of the month.

Captain Lyons, who has gone very carefully into the question, has supplied meteorological data and notes regarding the rain-fall and levels which go to show that the former have been most unsatisfactory in Abyssinia, where the rains have been persistently weak throughout.

At the present time, the gauge at Rosseires is over 1.50

the rains have been persistently weak throughout.

At the present time, the gauge at Rosseires is over 1.50 metres below the average of the last seven years (1900 to 1906) all of whichwere years of flood which were well under the average; and at Khartoum at the time of writing, the river has touched the low level, on the same date, of the year 1905.

The rain-fall of June seems to have been on the whole as much as 50 % deficient, and that of July nearly 30 %; but news has just come that the rain-fall during the last few days has shown an improvement and Rosseires has begun to rise a little. Even, however, if the rains of Angust and September were to be fully up to the average, it looks as if we may expect a flood of about 15 % below the normal of previous years; while, if the latter portion of the rainy season proves bad, the flood volume may fall to as much as 20 or 25% below the average.

To sum up therefore, the flood is backward and weak and though the cotton and summer irrigation and late summer Sharaki sowings are proceeding satisfactorily owing to the assistance of the Assouan reservoir, there may be some difficulty in irrigating some of the higher basin hands in Middle Egypt and East Giza; and unless the rainfall shows marked improvements in August and September, the flood will remains low one.

THE EGYPTIAN CRISIS.

MEETING OF MESSRS SAHAL'S · CREDITORS.

At the meeting of the creditors of Measrs Sahal Brothers, held at the Chartered Accountants' Rooms, Manchester, on Monday week, Messrs Murgatroyd, Shuttleworth, and Haworth, chartered accountants, submitted a statement of affairs which showed total assets £317,926, and liabilities £211,942, leaving a surplus of £105,984, Mr. Charles L. Samson, (Messrs, Grundy, Hershaw and Co., solicitors, Manchester), who represented Messrs. Sahal and Co., explained that the present position had been brought about by the recent financial crisis in Egypt. After discussion a resolution was passed unanimously to the effect that Messrs. Sahal and Co. should continue to carry on their business under the supervision of three inspectors—Messrs, J. P. Garnett, A. D. Harvey, and E. F. Stockton. Among those present representing firms interested were Messrs. R. A. Elgar (Messrs. Bode and Edgar), Mr. H. Agnew (Messrs. Bale, Seddon, and Co.) Mr. J. P. Garnett (Messrs. David Smith, Garnett, and Co.), and Mr. H., L. Price.

CAIRO WATER SUPPLY

-ALEXANDELA

COMPLAINTS OF IMPURITY.

THE OFFICIAL REPLY.

One can easily free the water supplied from any sign of iron or magnesia by the use of special filters.

Under the Council of the Sanitary Administration, the Water Company decided several months ago upon the installation of certain filters of which they have made a special study, but naturally a complete installation cannot be made in a day or two. It will take at least a year. Until then the public must be patient and endeavour to remedy the inconvenience of which they complain, by themselves filtering the water and when it is seen to contain iron to pass it through cotton wool, but there is no reason whatever to be alarmed and to fear that the state of the water actually implies a danger to the public health.

In conclusion a comparative table of water analyses is given from different sources and different periods, and from which it can be seen that the water from the artesian wells at Rod-el-Farag, though being a little more charged with mineral salts than the Nile Water, is not more so than the water of Zeitoun of which no complaint has been made, the water of Tantah, and the celebrated water of Evian.

That was an abnormal condition of affairs which should not be allowed to continue indefinitely. It was their belief that the time had now arrived when, following upon the lines laid down in Lord Dufferin's scheme, a step forward might prudently be taken for endowing Egypt with constitutional capacity. They did not ask for power to revise treaties, or to alter their relations, financial and otherwise, with European States. They did not ask that they should be enabled to legislate where foreigners resident in Egypt were concerned. All that they asked, for the present at least, was that they should be enabled to legislate in matters administrative, educational, judicial, and financial, which solely appertained to their own people. To accomplish their aims they proposed to do nothing that should savour of revolution, but to employ solely constitutional methods. If it be decreed that Egypt must fall under the domination of a foreign Power, they preferred in their heart of hearts that that Power should be England. But they appealed to the British nation to aid them in realizing what they believed to be their reasonable aspirations. (Cheers.)

Sheik Ali Bey Yussef, who also responded, said the English occupation of Egypt took place under abnormal circumstances, and it was never intended by the authors of the occupation that Egypt should become a British colony. He felt assured that if at any time the occupation should cease, in accordance with the pledges originally given, 'England would find an Egypt a grateful ally and a loyal partner in the country over which their united flags waved. The Egyptians were putting forward certain demands, and it would, in his view, exhibit England in a noble light before the whole world were she to accede to them. If they were asking that education should be rendered free to the whole nation, it was because they knew that that was the only means of elevating the masses. If they asked that the system of higher education be rendered more thorough than at present, it showed that all knowledge should be imparted in their native tongue, it was because they knew that a nation could not take its rightful share in the advancement of science save under such conditions. If they asked that Egyptians who were competent for government employ should be preferred to aliens, they were only vindicating a just claim. And if they asked that the Legislative Council and General Assembly should be endowed with legislative powers, it was because legislation in an alien garb could never be wholly assisfactory to a people whose national conscience was a walening. Further more, if they asked that griminal cases in which Europeans were charged, should be transferred from the Consular Courts to the mixed tri-bunals, it was because it was the simpler course these were the principal demands prescribed by the General Assembly which was recently

THE MEGLIS EL-HASBY.

Sir,—One of the departments of the Egyptian legal administration, which is greatly in need of reform, is the Meglis el-Hasby. I will give you a case in point. Some years ago, in 1904, the Meglis el-Hasby at Alexandria appointed a trustee to my father's property. This trustee did not execute his trust in an equitable manner.

In 1906 I brought an action against the trustee. The Sub-Governor of Alexandria, Hafez Bey Mohamed, supported the trustee with his influence and I could not get a judgment in the Meglis el-Hasby. I then appealed to Mr. Machell, Adviser to the Ministry of the Interior, and set all the facts of the case before him. He at once settled the matter to my satisfaction. This was in last June. Naturally I expected that after the Adviser had interfered I could obtain satisfaction, but as he has gone to Europe on leave I find that it is utterly impossible for me to get anything done at the Meglis. The influence of Hafez Bey Mohammed has again been brought to bear on the matter. I consequently have been obliged to furnish you with this information as the publicity, which will thereby ensue to the case, might possiby do some good to the public in general. I have given the exact facts and am perfectly willing to take the fullest responsibility for my statements, which I guarantee to be entirely correct in every detail.

Truly Yours

Truly Yours MOHAMED ABDUL KHALIK ISMAIL. Alexandria, August 3rd 1907, LORD CROMER'S £50,000.

M. Hardoin, commenting in the "Matin" on the proposed grant of £50,000 to Lord Cromer for his services in Egypt, says:—"Lord-Cromer ought to be thankful that he was born in England, and that it was to that country that he rendered his eminent service. If he had been born in France, and had rendered similar services, the only result would have been that the official "Gazette" would have published on its front page a decree appointing him "Grand-officer" of the Legion of Honour. The noble and disinterested spirit of a Frenchman is supposed to be content with the possession of a beautiful ted ribbon which he can put on, and, contemplating himself in the mirror, think of the glory which is reflected by his person. The Englishman, being without poetry, prefers good pounds sterling—he looks at the comfort which they will ensure for him."

WAGNER AT SAN STEFANO.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

Nearly fifty years ago, when Princess Pauline de Metternich Sandor introduced Wagner's music to the Court of Napoleon III, she was unable to obtain an audience. Could she have seen the terrace at San Stefano on Sunday morning she would have been amply justified of her convictions for almost every seat was occupied and, by the enthusiasm shown, it was evident that the majority came for the sole purpose of listening to the music.

A blue sky over an emerald sea, waves dancing in the sunlight and a cool breeze, bringing with it a sensation of languourous contentment, were elements calculated to enhance the enjoyment of the concert given by the Bracale orehestra. Apart from actual stage representations of the operas, I prefer to hear Wagner out-of-doors and the conditions at San Stefano compare. favourably with those in which we listen to a concert in the Queen's Hall (for example), even though the orchestra (which was considerably augmented for the occasion and included two ladies who lent their valuable aid) played 'con amore'.

I am not a perfect Wagnerite, I have never made the pilgrimage to Bayreuth, nor is my calling that of a musical critic but I profess an ear for music, and this was wholly satisfied. I preferred the first item in the programme, the prelute to the third act of "Lee Matres Chanteurs de Nuremberg," but the "Ride of of the Valkyries" was admirably performed and received an eathusjastic energy.

He was twice mentioned in despatches, and for his services was made a companion of the Bath.

THE INSCRIPTIONS OF SINAL

AN INTERESTING DISCVERY.

For some years past travellers in Sinal hanoticed a number of curious inscriptions for rocks in the wadis or valleys of the Penins.

The earliest traveller to note and copy the graffiti was the Indian explorer Foster, massed through the country on his way to The earliest traveller to note and copy these grafifit was the Indian explorer Foster, who passed through the country on his way to the Far East in the early part of the eighteenth century. This traveller unheastantingly samined them to the Israelites, who, according to his theory, inseribed them daining that forey years wanderings. Others again attributed them to pious pilgrims to Sinai, while some were of opinion that they were the work of shepherds. Against this last theory it was raged that few, if any of the modern Bedouin or shepherds of the district can either read or writs, how much less therefore those of the first and second centuries to which date the macriptions of Sinai certainly belong. All these theories have now been finally disposed of by the recent researches of Professor Rutiny, who has made a systematic examination of the whole district in which they are found, and has carefully studied and published the texts. The real authors of these inscriptions turn out to have been Nabathean traders, who from time to time passed through the Sinatic Peninsula with their caravans to the markets of Egypt and Palestine, and who thus left hehind them the records of their visits. The chief importance of the Sinaitic inscriptions lies in the fact that they represent the transitory stage of Nabatheau on the one hand and Neski Arabic on the other.

Racked with Rheumatism.

"For a period of 12 or 13 years," says Mr. Thomas Little, 5 Block, Caledonian Buildings, Motherwell, Scotland, "I was constantly troubled with rheunatism; so bad was it at times that I had to give up work. I attribute my illness to a chill; when I had anything like checold it few to my kilanes. The urinary secretions were cloudy and full. of sediment. But my worst trouble was, I was crippled by sciatica and rheumatism. The pain was terrible in my left hip and thigh; the sinews on my leg seemed to be contracted, for I could not put, my heel to the ground. I could not straighten my leg, and could only step on my toes. There was an awful, constant gnawing pain. My shoulders and arms, also were full of aches; my knee, troubled me, being badly swollen for years. The pain in my back, especially over the right kidney, was just as if a knife had been stuck into me.

"This will give you some idea of my suffering. Then I read of the cure by Doan's Back-ache Kidney Fills of a case similar to mine, and decided to give them a trial. It was a happy resolve. Before I had finished the first box my back was easier; not only that, but the rheutiatism was much easier in my leg. I continued with the pills, and was cured. I need searcely say I esteem them a most wonderful medicine."

THE IONIAN BANK

As a branch of the Ionian Bank is shortly to be opened in this city, and as it is a bank of very old standing, having been founded in 1839, it will be interesting to our readers that we should give a short history of its antecedents. The Jonian Bank is an Assac Gautier should give a short history of its antecedents. The Ionian Bank is an Anglo-dreek institution, and it, and the National Bank of Greek, which is a purely local institution, are the only banks of issue in Greece.

According to the custom of the times when these banks were founded, which custom still prevails in Greece, they were respectively formed under Conventions with the Governments of the Ionian Republic, and the Greek kingdom, and in the case of the former, in conformity with Act 78 of the Fourth Session of the Fifth Parliament, which by Art. I vested in the Executive Government the necessary powers.

Dowers.

This law, then in force in the Ionian Republic, was understood to be based on the Venetian, and therefore, ultimately on the Roman Law. Under it the character and attributes of a corporate body attach at once upon an association acting under an aggregate name, without designation of the individuals who compose it; but as the law had not been reduced into a recognised code, and as associations in the nature of joint atook companies were new to the Ionian Islands, it was considered indispensable that the requisite powers for enabling the Bank to act in its aggregate capacity, as an individual subject of the states, should be conferred by means of a Couvention in express terms.

In great Britain, before the introduction of the Joint Stock Companies' Acts, a somewhat similar procedure was requisite, and the agreement concluded with the cover, including the statutes of the company, was called a season.

agreement concluded with the crown, including the statutes of the company, was called a charter. Here, in Egypt, foreign companies validly constituted, are wholly independent of any Government authorization or control; but a Firman of His Highness the Khedive, approving of the conditions contained in the articles of association of a company, proposing to constitute itself in Egypt, and authorising of the Native Tribunals.

Although the Ionian Bank is older than the National Bank, by three years, it having been established in 1899, the year Greece was declared an independent kingdom, it did not commence operations in the mainland of Greece, until the year 1864, when the Ionian Islands were coded to Greece; but the commercial relations of the two states during the earlier period of their existence were intimate and nocessitated the establishment of agencies by the Ionian Bank in two or three of the towns of Greece.

Practically, the life of these two banks

Practically, the life of these two banks overs the banking and currency history of the modern kingdom of Greece, and they, alone, of the banks existing in Greece to-day, passed through the severe financial vicinistudes of the earlier existence of the State; and from being privileged, and to a 'certain extent State Banks' were specially affected by the currency difficulties between 1881 and 1890.

Whilst the National Bank is distinguished from all other banks in Greece, having regard to the volume of its busines, its uniqueness of the commanding character of its Governor, and a large body of shareholders, its uniqueness of many of its details of management, and its respect of stability, and credit, and the conservative character of its administration that its reputation exceeds that of the Ionian Bank. As the Ionian Bank's history is specially bound up with that of the Ionian Islands, a earlies any agreement in section (Coreyrah) and the Corinthiana.

In the 16th Century, the Seven Inlands passed into the hands of the Yenetians.

As Venice left her indelible mark in the lacoul characteristics, and political economy of these islanders, it has well to point out that Yenice was more of a Greek than an Italian town, dating from the Latin conquest of Constantinople; and the state, of which it was the chief town, was a patrician Republic copied from Byantine model.

Subsequently, on the arrival of the Turks in the Pelopomessus, they drove out the rigning predatory (tracks, the military element who dominated that country, and who owned sllegiance to the emperors of the east, and there, under the name of "Estradigts," become military settlers in the Verstein State, and in other States who sought them as mercenaries.

and in other States who sought them as mer-cenarie.

Of the Venetians, Dante thus speaks, in a letter he wrote to Guido da Folenta — "it is "not a thing to make marvel, that they (the "Venetians) do not know how to speak Italian," 'for they are descended from Dalmatien, 'for the Venetians and the fonians, it will be readily understock that the settle-ment of the Venetians in the Seven Islands partoks of a peaceable coopation.

In the 18th century, the Seven Islands were first taken by the Frence, who, in their turn, were expelled by the Russiass and the Turks; and early in the 19th centure, by the Transport of Tisis, Russia coded them to France. France corrupted them from 1807 until 1809, except-Corfu, which she did not surrender until 1814.

Between 1809 and 1814, they were gradually until 1814.

Between 1809 and 1814, they were gradually taken possession of by the British troops.

The importance of the Ionian Islands, as a military and naval post, was well kinown, and, also, that Venice made Cortir her chief arsenal and advance poet for her operations in the East. It was these considerations, and that they were occupied by the French, that induced the British to capture them. When they did so, they made Zanto the expiral, and it became the head quarters of the British forces and Admiralty.

In 1816, by the Tweeter of the British forces and Admiralty.

From the first birth of their independence by Art, 9, of the Tresty of Amiens, they were the object of considerable interest to the great powers. They had a Benate, which were a restor-ation of the Venetian plan of administration, and a Legislative Assembly, and they assum-ed the title of the United States of "the lonians islands," but they were practically ruled by the British Lord High Commis-sioner.

i lonians islands," but they were practically ruled by the British Lord High Commissioner.

The Ionian Eank was projected by the Lord High Commissioner, Lieutenart General Sir. Howard Douglas.

He suggested its formation as a means for remedying the many grievances and exactions which the necessitous small landowners were enduring from the local money lenders, who bought up their harvest of oil and currants every year.

Overtures were made by him in the year 1838, through the medium of Sir Alexander Wood, the Agent in London for the Ionian States, to certain capitalists in England, for the formation of a Company, which resulted in the Ionian Bank being formed with a capital of £100,000, and: a Convection was finally granted to the bank by the United States of the Ionian Islands, on the 22rd October 1839.

on the 23rd October 1839.

On the 23rd March 1840, the bank was opened for business at Corfu, on the 18th May at Zante, and on the 10th August at Cephalonia.

In 1844, the bank applied to the British Government, and obtained a charter subject to the usual conditions.

In 1864, Mr. Gladstone, by the Treaty of London, with the three Great Powers, who signed the Treaty of Paris, procured the union of the Septinsular Republic with the Kingdom of Greece.

of Greece.

Mr. Gladstone was influenced in this stage,

Mr. Gladstone was influenced in this stage, of treece.

Mr. Gladstone was influenced in this stage, and only by the dictates of his own sympathetic spirit, but by the political unrest of the Ionians of Greek origin, who considered themselves deprived of their just rights and liberties under the Treaty of Paris, by their constitutional remonstrances against the administration of the Institutional remonstrances against the administration of the Islands by some of the high-salaried British officials; and by their natural desire for unity with Greece, whose independence was guaranteed by the Great Powers.

The official transfer of the Islands was carried out by Sir H. K. Stevens one of whose Secretaries at the time, was Mr. Evelyn Baring, now Lord Cromer.

Under this Treaty, the rights and privileges of the Ionian Bank, as far as they were comprised in its original convention, and renewals of the same, were protected and guaranteed by the three Great Powers and Greece.

Thenceforth, it became a privileged bank in Greece, and had to enter into communication.

iven to register the Bank under the English Companies Acts as a Limited Company, which as done on the 5th March 1883. The Bank in its profits has reflected the manging economic conditions of Greece, but it was done on the 6th March 1883.

The Bank in its profits has reflected the changing sconner conditions of Greece, but it is has sever failed to pay an ammal dividend to fit is thareholders, and for the last three years has declared a uniform dividend of 6 per cent, and has added to its reserve. The careful self-ministration of the duties of the lutterational Financial Commission, and of the public finances by the various Governments which have held power from 1898, in a copporation with the Commission, have opened up a new era for Greece, and for the banking establishments there.

And the stability of the finances of the country under the conditions of the arrangement arrived at in 1898, and the great natural enhancement of the paper drachms to almost par, and the re-establishment of conditions, confirm the belief that the country will continue its progress.

It is also to be expected, that, shortly, the inconvertible bank-note, as far as Greece is concerned, will became a discarded tool, a dark vision of an unwholesome fannical part, and substance, in the shape of gold, will once more vign as the incans and measure of the suchange of wealth; and the recervoir of lossable capital.

The entension of the commercial relations of Greece with foreign parts, and especially with Egypt, and the competition of the local banks Egypt, and the competition of the local banks.

Icenable capital.

The entension of the commercial relations of Greece with foreign parts, and especially with Egypt, and the competition of the local banks which renders the employment of money in Greece comparatively unrenumerative, and the attractions of this progessive and economically sound country have induced the authorities of the Bank to establish a Branch thorities of the Bank to establish a Branch here.

There cannot be a doubt that the Bank has arrived in Egypt at an opportune moment, when the business public are marting from the disappointments and losses of a severe financial crisis, and will be ready to velcome the facilities which a bank new to this field may offer; and when Greeks, especially, who are minnerous here, will be more inclined to rally round an institution which they have known from their childhood. The Bank's capital is small in comparison with many of the important institutions already established here, only about £400,000 including its reserves; but we understand there is an intention of increasing the capital should circomstances warrant this step being taken.

"I had been brought to a teirible state by the lingering tortores of ansenia. My face was white and drawn, and I grew so listless and depreased that nothing interested im. My heart ghalpitated violently, at times, and I suffered so from shortness of breath that I had suffered so from shortness of breath that I had suffered so from shortness of breath that I had suffered so from shortness of breath that I had suffered so from shortness of breath that I had suffered so from shortness of breath that I had suffered so from shortness of breath that I had suffered so from shortness of breath that I had suffered so from shortness of breath that I had to hold on to chairs. I was never free from I dull, heavy headaches, while all appetite yamished, for the lightest rised was followed, by most acute pains of indigestion. Then my nerves became so affected that I was strainly nerves became so affected that I was strainly nerves became so affected that I was strainly any benefit.

"One day my mother obtained two boxes of Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People, and I began to take these pills. Before long I felt stronger and the strainly and there was a colour in my checks. As I kept on with Dr. Williams Pink Pills I felt stronger and stronger, until I became as well as you see me now.
